

‘The Corps is a great school for the training of American citizens, in which men have the finest kind of opportunity to serve our country.’