Sea Power

and the World

Edited by

James C. Bradford
To

Members of the United States Naval Academy

Class of 1957

They made and appreciate history
Contents

Preface

Contributors

Maps

Illustrations

1: Sea Power and the Modern State System

2. The American War for Independence at Sea

3. Genesis of the U.S. Navy, 1785-1806

4. The Naval War of 1812: Independence Confirmed, 1807-1815

5. The Squadron Navy: Agent of a Commercial Empire, 1815-1890

6. Technological Revolution at Sea

7. The Civil War: Blockade and Counter-Blockade

8. The Civil War on Rivers and Coastal Waters

9. The New Navy, 1865-1895

10. War with Spain and the Revolution in Naval Affairs, 1895-1910

11. Defending Imperial Interests in Asia and the Caribbean, 1898-1941

12. Naval Rivalry and World War I at Sea, 1900-1920

13. Finding Certainty in Uncertain Times: The Navy in the Interwar Years

14. World War II in the Atlantic and Mediterranean

16. Offensive in the Pacific, 1943-1944

17. The Victory of Sea Power in the Pacific
18. The Uneasy Transition, 1945-1953
19. Cold War Challenges, 1953-1963
20. The Test of Vietnam
21. Twilight of the Cold War: Contraction, Reform and Revival
22. Contours of Conflict: Worldwide War on Terrorism, 1990-2014
23. “Quo Vadis”

End Notes

Bibliography

Contributors

1: Sea Power and the Modern State System, by James C. Bradford

James C. Bradford, Professor of History at Texas A&M University, has been a Visiting Professor at the Air War College and held the Class of 1957 Distinguished Chair in Naval Heritage at the U.S. Naval Academy. He edited The Papers of John Paul Jones (1986), The Atlas of American Military History (2003), The International Encyclopedia of Military History (2006), and the Companion to American Military History (2010). A naval and maritime historian, he served as president of the North American Society for Oceanic History and was an inaugural recipient of the Naval Historical Foundation’s Commodore Dudley W. Knox Award for Lifetime Achievement in Naval History in 2013.

2. The American War for Independence at Sea, by Virginia W. Lunsford

Virginia W. Lunsford is an associate professor of history at the United States Naval Academy and specializes in early-modern maritime history, especially Age of Sail naval warfare and the history of piracy. She holds a Ph.D. from Harvard University and is the author of Piracy and Privateering in the Golden Age Netherlands (2005). Among other endeavors, she currently is writing Dead Men Tell No Tales: A Cultural History of Piracy in the Modern Age and working on a collaborative Franco-American research project exploring the French role in the naval history of the American Revolution.

3. Genesis of the U.S. Navy, 1785-1806, by Joseph P. Slaughter

   Joseph P. Slaughter is Junior Permanent Military Professor in Early American History at the U.S. Naval Academy. His M.A. thesis (University of Maryland) “A Navy in the New Republic” examines the debates over reestablishment of the navy in the early national period, while his Ph.D. research investigates the intersection of early nineteenth century religious revivals, emergent technologies, and the market revolution. He resides in Annapolis with his wife Casey, daughter Wren, and son Graydon.

   Gene Allen Smith is a Professor of History at Texas Christian University, in Fort Worth. During the 2013-2014 academic year he served as the Class of 1957 Distinguished Chair in Naval Heritage at the United States Naval Academy. Author or editor of numerous books, articles, reviews on the War of 1812; naval and maritime history; and territorial expansion along the Gulf of Mexico; his most recent book is The Slaves' Gamble: Choosing Sides in the War of 1812 (2013). Since 2002 he has also served as the Director of the Center for Texas Studies at TCU.

   John H. Schroeder is Chancellor Emeritus and Professor Emeritus at the University of Wisconsin--Milwaukee. He served as the Class of 1957 Distinguished Professor of

6. Technological Revolution at Sea, by William M. McBride

   William M. McBride is professor of history at the U.S. Naval Academy where he teaches courses in the history of technology, science, and engineering as well as naval and military history. He is the author of Technological Change and the United States Navy, 1865-1945. Prior to coming to Annapolis, he was on the history faculty at James Madison University where he was named inaugural Edna T. Shaeffer Distinguished Humanist.

7. The Civil War: Blockade and Counter-Blockade, by Craig L. Symonds

   Craig L. Symonds, Professor Emeritus at the U.S. Naval Academy, is the author of numerous works, including The Civil War at Sea (2012); Lincoln and His Admirals (2008); and Decision at Sea: Five Naval Battles That Shaped American History (2005). They have earned him the Abraham Lincoln Book Award (2010), The Lincoln Prize (2009), the Barondess Prize (2009), the Theodore and Franklin D. Roosevelt Prize in Naval History (2006), and other awards. Symonds returned to the Naval Academy to hold the Class of 1957 Distinguished Chair in Naval Heritage, 2011-2012. In 2014, the Naval Historical Foundation awarded him the Commodore Dudley W. Knox Naval History Lifetime Achievement Award.
8. The Civil War on Rivers and Coastal Waters, by Wayne Hsieh

Wayne Wei-siang Hsieh is an Associate Professor of History at the U.S. Naval Academy and the author of West Pointers and the Civil War: The Old Army in War and Peace (2009), along with various other academic articles. Hsieh was detailed to the Department of State between July 2008 and June 2009 to serve as the senior civilian U.S. Government official assigned to the Tuz district of Iraq where he worked with the area’s 150,000 inhabitants on ethnic political issues.

9. The New Navy, 1865-1895, by Frederick S. Harrod

Frederick S. Harrod is a professor of history at the U.S. Naval Academy. He received a Bachelor of Arts from Carleton College and a doctorate from Northwestern University. He is the author of Manning the New Navy: The Development of a Modern Naval Enlisted Force, 1899-1940 (1978) and several articles on naval history including “New Technology in the Old Navy: The United States Navy during the 1870s.”

10. War with Spain and the Revolution in Naval Affairs, 1895-1910, by James C. Rentfrow

James C. “Chris” Rentfrow, U.S. Naval Academy class of 1989, flew the EA-6B Prowler, before being selected to participate in the Permanent Military Professor program. Commander Rentfrow completed his doctoral work at the University of Maryland, College Park, graduating in 2012, and taught at the U.S. Naval War College before joining the faculty at the U.S. Naval Academy where he teaches U.S. and Naval History. His book, Home Squadron: The U.S. Navy on the North Atlantic Station, was published in 2014.
11. Defending the Imperial Interests in Asia and the Caribbean, 1898-1941, by Aaron B. O’Connell

Aaron B. O’Connell is an Associate Professor of History at the U.S. Naval Academy and a Lieutenant Colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve. His first book, Underdogs: The Making of the Modern Marine Corps, was published in 2012. He is currently writing a history of the American War in Afghanistan.

12. Naval Rivalry and World War I at Sea, 1900-1920, by Jon K. Hendrickson

Jon K. Hendrickson earned his Ph.D in Military History from The Ohio State University in 2012, and was the first Class of 1957 Postdoctoral Fellow in Naval History at the Naval Academy. The author of Crisis in the Mediterranean: Naval Competition and Great Power Politics in the Mediterranean, 1904-1914 (2014), he currently teaches at Coastal Carolina University in Conway, South Carolina.

13. Finding Certainty in Uncertain Times: The Navy in the Interwar Years, by Craig C. Felker

Craig C. Felker joined the faculty of the history department at the U.S. Naval Academy in June 2004 and now serves as its chair. Captain Felker’s publications include Testing American Sea Power: U.S. Navy Strategic Exercises, 1923-1940 (2007) and New Interpretations in Naval History, an edited collection of papers from the 2011 Naval History Symposium. In December 2011 he returned from a one-year deployment to Afghanistan, serving as the command historian and commanding officer, U.S. Navy detachment for NATO Training Mission Afghanistan.

14. World War II in the Atlantic and Mediterranean, by Marcus O. Jones
Marcus Jones is professor of history at the U.S. Naval Academy. He took his degrees from The Ohio State University and the University of Hamburg, Germany, and finished his PhD at Yale University in 2005. His publications on World War II, U-boat design and construction, and the strategic policy of Bismarckian Germany and the Kaiserreich include Nazi Steel: Friedrich Flick and German Expansion in Western Europe, 1940-1944 (2012). He lives in Annapolis, Maryland.

Davin O’Hora teaches U.S. Naval History and the History of Airpower at the U.S. Naval Academy. He holds a BA in History from Florida State University and an MA in Diplomacy and Military Studies from Hawaii Pacific University. A Naval Flight Officer flying the carrier-based E-2C Hawkeye he has made numerous deployments to the Mediterranean and Arabian Gulf and flown combat missions over Iraq. Between deployments he has served on major staffs in both the Pacific and Middle East.

Excellence in Naval Aviation History and Literature from the Naval Aviation Museum Foundation.

17. The Victory of Sea Power in the Pacific, by Edward J. Marolda

Edward J. Marolda, whose 40-year career in the U.S. government included, service as the Director of Naval History (Acting) and Senior Historian of the Navy at the Naval Historical Center, Washington, D.C., served as a U.S. Army officer in Vietnam during 1969 and 1970. He earned a Ph.D from George Washington University in 1990 and is the author, coauthor, or editor of fifteen books, including FDR and the U.S. Navy; Ready Sea Power: A History of the U.S. Seventh Fleet; The U.S. Navy in the Korean War, and seven works on the Vietnam War. Marolda currently teaches a course on the U.S. and China during the Cold War at Georgetown University.

18. The Uneasy Transition, 1945-1953, by Kenneth W. Estes

Kenneth W. Estes, a 1969 Naval Academy graduate, served in a variety of command and staff assignments in the U.S. Marine Corps until his retirement in 1993. Receiving his doctorate in European History in 1984, he taught at Duke University and the U.S. Naval Academy. Estes has edited or written over a dozen books, including Marines Under Armor: The Marine Corps and the Armored Fighting Vehicle, 1916-2000 (2000); Into the Breach at Pusan: The 1st Provisional Marine Brigade in the Korean War (2012); and A European Anabasis: Western European Volunteers in the German Army and SS, 1940-45 (2014), and contributed numerous chapters and essays to other compendiums, plus articles in military and academic journals. In 1992 he became an Honorary Legionnaire in the Spanish Legion, and, in 2001, garnered a Gutenberg-e Prize from the American Historical Association for a Distinguished Dissertation in History.

Lori L. Bogle, a cultural and intellectual historian, teaches at the United States Naval Academy. The author of The Pentagon's Battle for the American Mind: The Early Cold War (2004) and several journal articles, she is currently working on another book-length study, “Selling Sea Power: Theodore Roosevelt and Turn of the Century Naval Public Relations.”

20. The Test of Vietnam, by Richard A. Ruth

Richard A. Ruth teaches Southeast Asian history at the U.S. Naval Academy. He worked as a field agent for American non-governmental aid agencies in Vietnam, Cambodia, and Thailand from 1989-1995; earned his Ph.D. in history at Cornell University in 2007, specializing in Southeast Asia during the 1960s and 1970; and is the author of In Buddha’s Company: Thai Soldiers in the Vietnam War (2010). Currently, he is finishing a history about the origins of the Royal Thai Navy.

21. Twilight of the Cold War: Contraction, Reform and Revival, by Joseph T. Stanik

Joseph T. Stanik, a retired U.S. Navy surface warfare officer and former history instructor at the U.S. Naval Academy, is the author of El Dorado Canyon: Reagan’s Undeclared War with Qaddafi (2003) and “Swift and Effective Retribution:” The U.S. Sixth Fleet and the Confrontation with Qaddafi (1996). Since leaving active duty, he has served as a high school history teacher with Baltimore City Public Schools. He also teaches Middle Eastern history at Anne Arundel Community College in Maryland. A 1978 graduate of the Naval Academy, he holds advanced degrees from the Naval Postgraduate School and University of Maryland, Baltimore County.

Ernest Tucker has been a professor of history at the U.S. Naval Academy since 1990. He has published numerous books and articles on Middle Eastern history including The Middle East in Modern World History (2012). He is currently finishing a monograph on the Ottoman/Turkish Red Crescent Society (a part of the International Red Cross movement) as a window on Middle Eastern life in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. In 2005-2006, he was a Fulbright Senior Scholar in Istanbul, Turkey.

23. “Quo Vadis,” by Mark R. Hagerott

Mark R. Hagerott, Captain USN(ret), serves as the Deputy Director and Distinguished Professor of the U.S. Naval Academy Center for Cyber Studies. He has written extensively on the intersection of changing technology and human organizations. His book chapters and articles have been published by the National Academy of Sciences, Naval War College Review, Foreign Policy, Journal of Military History, Joint Forces Quarterly, Naval Institute Proceedings, Combat Studies Institute, and in Europe, by École Spéciale Militaire de Saint-Cyr. A former ship captain, he served on five ships including duty on both nuclear powered ships and AEGIS cruisers. He is an Afghan war veteran and Rhodes Scholar.